★In addition to other properties owned by the company, it also includes a set of applications for a Japanese management visa (as a company manager)

Information on Business Management Visa

The business administration visa (business management visa) is a status of residence to engage in business management and administrative work in Japan, and is one of the work visas. It used to be called "Investment and Management Visa," but the name was changed to "Business Management Visa" because it is now possible to apply for and obtain this visa even if you have no ties to foreign capital.

Japanese nationals and permanent residents can assume the position of representative director or director to manage a company in Japan, but foreigners cannot engage in activities in Japan, even if they can assume the position of director, depending on the type of status of residence. However, if a foreigner obtains a business/administrative visa, he/she can stay in Japan for a medium- to long-term period and act as a representative director, director, branch manager, factory manager, general manager, or other company manager.

For company representatives and others, income and profits in the tens or hundreds of millions of yen can be expected if the procedures for closing accounts, sales, and tax payments are properly followed.

If you wish to start a business in Japan and obtain a business management visa, you must meet the following requirements before applying for the visa.

- The business office must be located in Japan.
- The business must be above a certain size (more than 2 full-time employees or more than 5 million yen in capital).
- The applicant must be able to demonstrate the appropriateness, stability, and continuity of the business.
- The applicant must be engaged in the management of the business.

In order to obtain a business administration visa, the business must "have a business office, a business scale, and the appropriateness, stability, and continuity of the business, and the applicant for a business administration visa must actually engage in the management of the business".

In the case of purchasing GENDAI SHUDAN Co. as a corporate M&A, after notification to the tax office and preparation of a business plan and project, it is possible to apply for a business management visa, and the visa is granted with a pass rate of over 90%. In this case, the visa is granted at a rate of 90% or higher.
